

Gulf Chef School holds cake decorating class

There were smiles all around last week among the participants with the cake decorating class conducted over four weeks by Gulf Chef School at National Hospitality Institute (NHI), coming to an end. The students proudly displayed their final cakes during the certification ceremony attended by Robert MacLean, principal of NHI. "The students have done an amazing job in just four weeks and all credit to their teacher Chef Ramesh," MacLean said.

The classes are over four weeks and conducted in the school's professional kitchens.

Timings are from 9am till 12.30pm, usually on Saturday mornings. Gulf Chef School also conducts leisure classes in bread making, pastry, and its latest one is Macaroon mornings where you make your own colourful macaroons and then sit and enjoy them with a nice cup of Illy Coffee.

If anyone would like to know more about the courses, they can call the business centre at NHI on 24816313.
