NHI student joins HTMI Hotel School in Switzerland

Tom Lax is the first student from National Hospitality Institute (NHI) to join the HTMI Hotel School in Switzerland. This is due to a new agreement between NHI and HTMI whereby students on NHI's Hotel Management Diploma can continue their studies to degree level at HTMI.

Robert Maclean, principal of NHI visited HTMI in August and met with the academic dean Charles Hains.

The partnership between the two training entities will grow further and NHI hopes to be able to deliver the HTMI diploma directly at NHI from next year.

Maclean said, "I am delighted to have had the chance to visit HTMI and to see Tom settled in his new school."

He added, "We are looking forward to working with HTMI in the future to help us develop young people for our ever growing hospitality industry. With the growth of tourism in Oman it is imperative that we put forward solutions to the employment needs of young Omanis and others."
