Renaissance Services developing young Omanis

MUSCAT: A motivated group of young Omanis was at the National Hospitality Institute (NHI) where they are training under the support of the National Training Fund (NTF) and have guaranteed employment from Renaissance Services.

The trainees will be provided with both theoretical and practical hands-on training by NHI before being deployed in the field at one of Renaissances many operations.

Renaissance CEO, Stephen Thomas, said, "We support this programme to develop local workforce. We are committed to ever-increasing In Country Value (ICV) by driving meaningful initiatives that achieve greater Omani employment, maximum use of local goods and services, and effective Domestic Direct Investment (DDI).

The trainees will be visited by the company during training programme and Renaissance personnel will ensure that the trainees have a comprehensive understanding of the job and the environment they have signed up to.

The trainees will spend five months on the training programme with a combination of centre-based training and on-job training ensuring they have the skills and knowledge to do the job in hand.
