The National Hospitality Institute (NHI) is renowned in Oman for its innovative solutions to the challenges of vocational training and youth employment.

In line with this, NHI has launched the Mushreff programme, designed to train su-perisors in industry how to deal with students attending on-the-job training in their companies. There are many challenges in communication and understanding of the students' role during on-the-job training and this programme is designed to assist this challenge.

The Mushreff programme has been designed by training consultant Julie Locke who has worked with NHI for many years.

"We are delighted to launch this new initiative which is one of the several coming out from NHI this year. As we move to our 25th year anniversary next year, NHI is fully engaged in the challenges of training for hospitality and travel," said Robert MacLean, principal, NHI.
