NHI achieves IiP standard again

THE National Hospitality Institute (NHI) has been awarded the Investor in People (IiP) standard once again having maintained this since 2003. This is the third time that NHI is successfully passing the lengthy and challenging international assessment of the IiP standard. The NHI team welcomed Dr Noel Guckian, the British Ambassador who presented the team with their new standard.

Investors in People have grown to be the UK's leading people management business improvement standard because it delivers improved performance to thousands of organisations. Currently almost seven million employees in over 35,000 organisations have achieved this recognition. And an amazing 3,000 of these have been recognised for ten or more years. NHI is the first and only privately owned company in Oman to have awarded with IiP recognition since 2003.

"Demonstrating our dedication to maintaining the IiP standard, NHI continues to strive to create and maintain a friendly, development focused and well balanced working environment", Claire Reynard, Human Resources Officer, NHI said.

In addition to helping NHI improve its business performance, they also work with IiP to attract and retain the most talented people, and demonstrate that they are committed to people development.

"This recognition is not obligatory in our line of business, however NHI endeavours to be a pioneer in the business of people development and demonstrate our commitment to delivering quality and internationally accredited training in hospitality in Oman," said Robert MacLean, Principal of NHI.
